DAUGHTER TELLS STORY OF RUIN

Lecherous Fiend Gave Her Drink Then Ruined Her.
To Save Father From Death on the Scaffold She Relates Tale of Shame.

Houston, Va., June 25.—Between stifling sobs, with tears streaming from her bright blue eyes, and while striving to hold back the huge lump in her throat, Miss Elizabeth Loving, who has occupied the center of the stage in the trial of her father, Judge William G. Loving for the murder of Theodore Estes, told on the witness stand here to-day her story of her alleged ruin by the young man, whom her parent shot down.

The recital was probably the most dramatic ever heard in a Virginia court of justice and rivaled the story by Evelyn Nesbit Thaw of her ruin by Stanford White. It was the same story she said she told to her father on the morning of the tragedy, and which culminated in his hunting down and slaying the man whom she charges with perpetrating the deed.

Estes, she said, had given her a drink of whisky from a flask he had in his pocket while they were out buggy riding on the afternoon prior to the killing. After taking the drink, she declared that she immediately began to feel dizzy and her head "spun around" as if she had been given some powerful drug. In this condition and despite her protests she declared that her escort drove her over an unfrequented road, and despite her screams outraged her.

Exhausted by the struggle and her mental faculties rendered incapable from the stimulant, the witness declared that she recalled nothing more until she regained her senses while in bed late that night at the home of County Clerk S. L. Kidd, where she had been visiting Miss Kidd.

She testified that on the following morning when her father asked her for the cause of her being brought to the home of Mr. Kidd in an unconscious and drugged condition, she related to him on bended knees the same statement she made to day.

It was this recital, declared the defense, which so affected the mind of Judge Loving that it impelled him to commit a crime, which according to his statement, could have been prevented by no power "except God Almighty."

Whether the story told by the twenty-year-old girl to-day can be torn to pieces and disproved by the prosecution remains to be seen, and on the disproving of this story hangs the fate of the defendant. They claim that it can be shown that the outrage laid at the door of the man whose lips are sealed forever was impossible. The rebuttal evidence by the prosecution will be probably the most important feature of the case.

Miss Loving admitted that she had taken two drinks with young Estes during the drive, the first one being while at Estes' store. She was asked about other occasions when it is charged that she drank whisky, but the prosecution objected on the ground that it had no bearing on the case.

Not so When he Was Here.

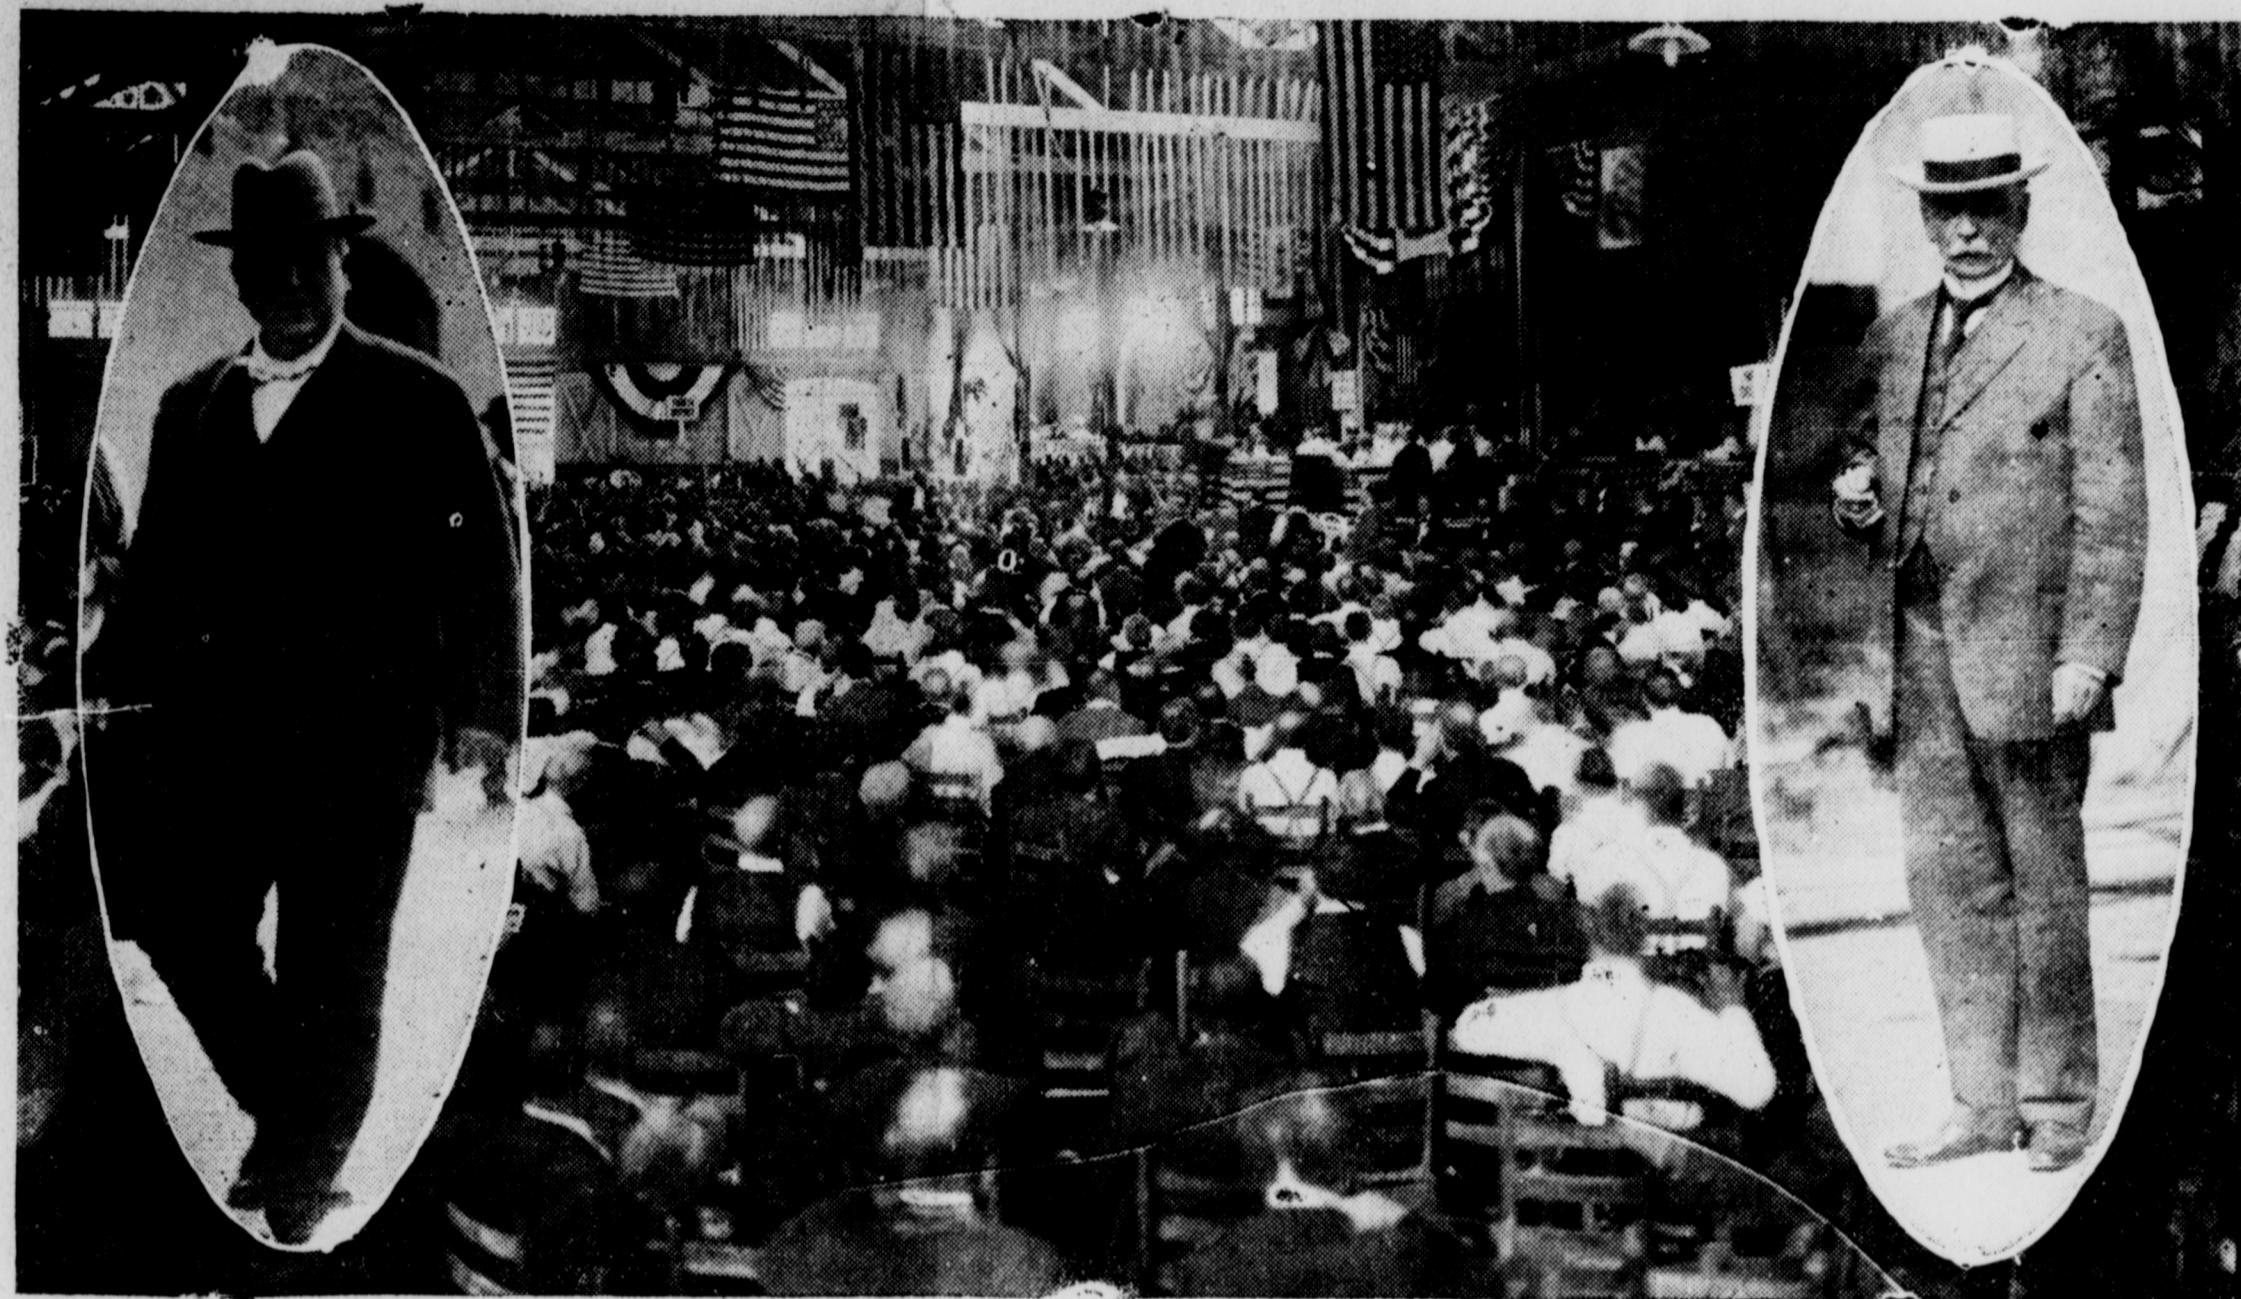

There is a falling off in the school census in Ohio county from last year's report. There must be something wrong in that neck of the woods. When the writer taught school there 40 years ago and "boarded around" he often slept in a trundle bed with half a dozen "kids," and the man that sent less than seven to school was considered no good.—Central City Republican.

Light Company Reorganized.

For some months past there has been a general complaint concerning the service given by the Electric Light Company, and this complaint culminated in the action of the city council refusing to contract for street lights. The fact seems to be that the local plant is not sufficiently equipped to handle the volume of business.

At a meeting held here Wednesday, Mr. J. D. Cooper, of Fordsville, and Mr. Pope McAdams, of Hawesville, sold and transferred the control and major portion of the stock to local business men of Hartford, and the company was reorganized by electing a new board of directors headed by M. L. Heavrin as President.

TOBACCO BEDS SUFFERING IN DAVIESS COUNTY

Plants Belonging to Poolers and Equity Men are Destroyed by Night Riders.

Extensive repairs and improvements were voted and an expert electrician engaged to over-haul the entire plant.

A large amount of money will be spent in buying new engine transformers &c., and it is the intention of the new management to make the plant give permanent and first class service.

Will Glenn, a young farmer living about three miles from the city on the Henderson road was destroyed.

The bed, which was a late one, contained plants enough to plant five or six acres and all of them were totally destroyed.

Mr. Glenn discovered the loss of his plants Sunday morning, although the act of vandalism was apparently committed as early as Wednesday or

Thursday night. Mr. Glenn had not seen the bed since Tuesday afternoon.

He has absolutely no clew as to the identity of the person who destroyed his property. He expects, however, to make the most thorough investigation possible, and if he can establish the identity of the person who destroyed his property, he will prosecute them to the extent of the law.

Mr. Glenn is a prominent young farmer, and so far as he knows, has not a single enemy. He is not a member of the tobacco growers' organization, but it is stated that he has heretofore pooled his tobacco with the A. S. of E. He will raise a fair crop of tobacco this year in spite of the destruction of last week.

He had previously planted several acres, but was depending on the bed that was destroyed for plants to set that portion of the ground which could not be gotten in the condition for early planting.

The only other beds reporter to having been destroyed in Daviess county were those of Mike and Paul Schrem.

The plants were killed by the burning of the canvass over them, but it is now believed that the canvass was set on fire by sparks from a locomotive, the beds being a few yards from the railroad track.

From later reports it is thought that all these plants were taken by parties who wanted them for setting purposes, which of course is wrong but not so much so as simply destroying them for spite or to prevent the owners from raising the weed.

Reports may also be exaggerated.

Platform of Republican Party 1907.

The platform of the Republican party, adopted in convention at Louisville June 19, 1907, is as follows:

We approve the policies and commend the ability, integrity and courage of President Roosevelt and his administration, and without expressing a preference for any candidate, favor the selection by the next national convention for President of one in full accord with those policies, and who will energetically carry them out in the interests of all the people.

Second—We demand that all elections shall be honestly conducted, and declare that the cause of good government and the future happiness and welfare of the people of Kentucky are inseparably bound up in the suppression of all abuses and crimes against an honest ballot, that have so unfortunately disgraced our State under Democratic rule, depriving the people of their rightful heritage—representative government.

The law for registration certificates, imposed on the State by the Democrat party for immoral political purposes, whereby votes in Kentucky have become negotiable instruments, passing by delivery ought to be repealed.

Third—The judiciary of the State in both the Circuit and Appellate Courts should be chosen on non-partisan grounds, and the continuance in office of faithful judicial public servants should be determined by no other qualifications than fitness.

Fourth—There should be complete publicity concerning the expenditure of money for political campaigns, and a law should be passed providing for an accounting by candidates and campaign managers of all sums of money collected for political purposes.

Fifth—We demand the redistricting of Kentucky in Legislative, Senatorial, Congressional and Judicial districts which shall give equal representation and equal voting power to every citizen of every district, in conformity with the plain requirements of the Constitution, and not as at present, in flagrant violation thereof.

Sixth—There should be prompt efficient enforcement of the criminal laws of every kind and at all times, but especially at this time do we call for the rigid enforcement of the law against those forms of crimes, which, under the recent administration of justice in many communities, have gone practically unpunished. Election thieves, gamblers, pool room operators and others, who commit crimes in the interest of those controlling the local administration of some of our cities and counties, should be punished, and the juries should be so selected as to prevent the packing of juries for the purpose of securing verdicts in accordance with the wishes of those in whose hands the selection of the juries is placed, or under whose control and direction they are selected.

Seventh—We demand that the books, vouchers and accounts of all municipalities, all public offices and public institutions supported by the State, counties or cities, and of all corporations in which a city or State owns the majority interest, either directly or through subordinate corporations, trustees or commissioners, shall be open to inspection and investigation by any citizen, and shall be regularly audited and the results published by an independent accountant, who shall not be eligible to re-examine such books, vouchers or accounts twice in succession.

Eighth—We demand a reform in the management of our public eleemosynary and penal institutions, to the end that they shall be operated by bipartisan boards, upon proper business principles, and their inmates treated humanely.

Ninth—We favor the enactment and enforcement of a uniform local option law, with the county as the governing unit.

Tenth—We demand that the public schools of the State shall be taken and kept entirely out of politics, and that the interests and welfare of the children shall have first consideration in all public matters.

We call for better schools and school houses, for longer school terms in the country and better pay for the teachers, and that elections for School Trustees be had on different days from other elections.

Eleventh—We favor amendments to State laws permitting and encouraging joint nominations of the same candidate by the different parties.

Twelfth—We condemn the law, passed for immoral political purposes, creating the Racing Commission in Kentucky, and demand its repeal.

Thirteenth—We condemn the enactment by the Democratic party of a large number of obnoxious tax laws and the creation of useless offices as the reward of partisan service, and we premise, if given power, to repeal all such laws and reduce the taxes to the lowest possible rate consistent with an efficient administration of the State government.

CONCLUSION.

For years past the legislation enacted by the Democratic party and dictated by certain of its leaders has not been for the benefit of the citizen, but for the officer holder. The chief aim of such legislation has been the continued holding of office and the creation of new offices to be traded in as rewards for party services.

The citizen is at last realizing, as never before, that the administration of public affairs is a business that comes close home to him; that such business must be honestly and efficiently conducted, and that his ballot should not be cast as a matter of sentiment, but for that candidate or party which shows the highest capacity for properly conducting the affairs of the State on strict business principles.

We ask the support of all patriotic citizens, regardless of their party affiliations, for the State ticket selected by this convention, and for the policies and principles above stated, believing that it will insure better days for Kentucky.

THE KING OF ALL CATFISH

Known to Fishermen and Steamboat Pilots and Goes by Name of "Old Joe."

Should you call the name "Old Joe," anywhere along the Cumberland river above Celina, Tenn., your hearers will at once become attentive and usually the query, "Have you seen him?" or "Who saw him last?" will greet your remark.

"Old Joe" is an immense catfish, eight or nine feet long, and it is thought will weigh more than two hundred pounds. He was first seen about twenty years ago in the Cumberland river where Marrowbone creek empties into that classic stream in Cumberland county. Since that time hardly a week passes during the fishing season that some one does not see this huge fish, and always near where he was first seen. The farthest point that has ever been known to roam was a mile.

Many plans to capture or kill "Old Joe" have miscarried and from the way he has eluded the various traps and snares set for him he must be wise as well as large. Fishermen anxious to possess "Old Joe's" scalp have camped on the river for weeks, remaining all day, waiting for a chance shot, placed poison in the river dynamited all along for a mile and after becoming worn out would leave in disgust, only to learn from someone that "Old Joe" had been seen the day he broke camp floating near the surface of the water, evidently enjoying a sun bath.

After "Old Joe's" habitation was established steamboat men began to

HOW THEY MAKE COUNTERFEIT COINS.

Expert Opinion on the Making of Spurious United States Currency.

Various metals are used by counterfeiters, principally platinum, silver, copper, brass, antimony, aluminum, zinc, type metal, lead and their numerous compositions.

Among the most dangerous counterfeits of gold coin are those of a composition of gold, silver and copper. They are a low-grade gold, and the acid test shows they lack the fineness of standard gold used by the United States mint, which is 900 fine or 21.19 carats. These counterfeits average from 400 to 800 fine. Platinum counterfeits are dangerous, as the metal used gives required weight, and they are heavily gold plated. When they have been in circulation for a time the plating wears off, especially on the edges.

The most dangerous counterfeit of silver coin is made of a composition of the dollar; have a fine appearance, are heavily silver plated, with fair ring; some are slightly below the standard weight.

Some pieces among the smaller coins are made of brass, struck from a die, and when heavily plated are fair imitations. They lack the required weight except in a few instances. Counterfeits of type metal and other compositions are much lighter than genuine; those having required weight are much too thick.

Genuine coins of all kinds, for the sake of grain, are tampered with in various ways. These operations are confined almost exclusively to gold coins, which are sweated, plugged and filled.

Sweating is removing a portion of the gold from the surface of the coin. The process does not interfere with the ring, and as portion removed is generally slight, the coin is left with a very fair appearance, weight only being defective. The principal methods of sweating are the acid bath, filing the edges or reading, the operator finding a profit in the small quantities of gold removed from numerous pieces. The average reduction in value of coins subjected to these processes is from one-twentieth to one-tenth.

Plugging is done by boring holes in the coin, extracting the gold and filling cavity with a cheaper material. The large coins—double eagles and eagles (20 and $10 pieces)—are used for this purpose. Holes are bored into the coin from the edge or reading, the gold extracted, and the cavity filled with a base metal. Small surface of the plugging material, where it shows on the edge of the coin, is covered with gold and reading retouched with a file or machine. The average loss in value to coins treated in this way is from one-eighth to one-sixth. Coins of this kind are very dangerous, as they are perfect in appearance, the edges only having been tampered with.

Filling is most commonly done by sawing the coin through from the edge of reading, removing the interior portion and replacing it with a cheap metal. Coin of all denominations, from quarter eagle to double eagle are subject to this process. When platinum is used to replace gold extracted the coin has same weight as genuine. By this process coins lose four-fifths of their value, as the original surfaces are left only of paper thickness.

When edges have been covered with gold and reading restored the coin has the appearance of being genuine, having correct size and weight and a fair ring. Sometimes the covering of gold on edges is so thin that filling can be distinctly seen. When other and less costly filling than platinum is used coins are of light weight and have a bad ring. If of correct weight they are too thick.

Another method of filling is sawing the coin partly in two, from edge of reading, on one side, leaving a thin and thick portion. The thin side of the coin turned back and the gold extract from the center or thicker portion. The cavity is filled with base metal and sides pressing back into original portion and soldered or brazed together. It is difficult to give average loss to coins treated in this manner, as hardly any two seem to have same amount of gold taken from them.

An examination of the cases this year and last shows, however, that there have been fewer lynchings for other crimes than assaults on women and murder. In other words, the trivial excuses for lynching have not been used to so great an extent. It is true that two negro women were lynched in March because of an assault on a white woman, and that one negro boy was lynched with no better reason than that he had "bumped into a white man on the street." Worse than these cases even was the brutal killing of a negro man and his wife in Claxton, Ga., last month when the woman was told she could

No mixture of issues, no confusion of Kentucky cannot be accomplished till we have a Republican Governor. In 1896 for the first and only time a Republican candidate for President carried the electoral vote of the State. This achievement were impossible without the State victory of 1895.

No victory may we look for in 1908 unless we shall have laid the necessary foundation for a State victory in 1907. The clamorers for a division of the party strength and purpose, needed for the redemption of the State in one of the most important elections in all her history. No easy task devolving on the Republicans of Kentucky to dislodge the corrupt element in power at Frankfort. The Democratic ticket is not weak, from the partisan, but very objectionable from the civic standpoint. There are on that ticket politicians able, experienced and resourceful. Many have strong family connections. All have local influence in their favor not to be despised.

The Republican victory of 1907 will be gained, not by Democratic weakness, but by Republican strength, organized and energized thoroughly. Every proposition, every suggestion provocative of division or promotive of strife, is sure to produce ill results. No politics have Republicans to play against each other, but all kinds of politics to deal out to the common foe. Unity, resolution and organization shall win. Republicans may, from the beginning, have all these essentials to triumph in active operation. Not a day to be lost. The enemy is strongly entrenched. No quarter will be given; none does he ask. Smite him hip and thigh. Drive him from his own earthworks into the gloom of defeat and the impotence of dethrone.

RAT BITES CHILD WHILE ASLEEP ON FLOOR.

Blood Showed From Toe of Three-Year-Old Child of Dr. Carter.

The three-year-old child of Dr. and Mrs. Carter, of Maxwell, while sleeping on the floor at the home, was bitten by a rat and the injury is a serious one. Blood poison is feared by the parents. The child was placed on a bed on the floor Friday night on account of the hot weather and shortly after midnight the little fellow began to scream. Dr. Carter was awakened and went at once to the child to find it covered in blood. The rat had bitten the big toe severely and blood was pouring from the place. The wound was dressed, and although the child rested fairly well Saturday it was in much pain.

Badly Mixed Up.
Abraham Brown, of Winterton, N. Y., had a very remarkable experience; he says: "Doctors got badly mixed up over me; one said heart disease; two called it kidney trouble; the fourth, blood poison, and the fifth stomach and liver trouble; but none of them helped me; so my wife advised trying Electric Bitters, which are restoring me to perfect health. One bottle did me more good than all the five prescribed." Guaranteed to cure blood poison, weakness and all stomach, liver and kidney complaints, by all druggists, 50c.

This Year's Lynchings.
According to the Chicago Record-Herald, up to two years ago the lynchings per year numbered 1,000, and there had been a time before that when they numbered 200 or more a year. The peculiar atrocity of some of these crimes in 1903 and 1904, together with the fact that the custom was showing signs of spreading across the border into the northern states, produced an outbreak of public opinion both in the north and in the south which had the effect of reducing lynching in 1905 and 1906 by about one-third.

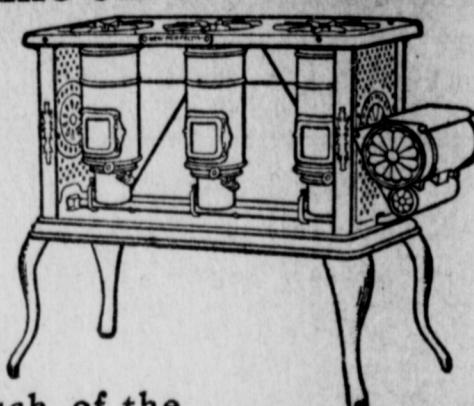

Apparently the rate of the last two years is to be maintained this year. The Record-Herald's statistics for the past five months and a half show twenty-three lynchings as against twenty-eight in a similar period of the preceding year. The summer months are usually the "lynching months" of the year and the slight gain this year is not sufficient to warrant any strong hope for an improved showing when the record for the twelve months is made up.

An examination of the cases this year and last shows, however, that there have been fewer lynchings for other crimes than assaults on women and murder. In other words, the trivial excuses for lynching have not been used to so great an extent. It is true that two negro women were lynched in March because of an assault on a white woman, and that one negro boy was lynched with no better reason than that he had "bumped into a white man on the street."

escape if she would run, and then was made a target for the race "sportsmen." That crime excited Georgia more than any other part of the union and indirectly will result in good.

Another point to notice this year is that plain hangings have been the rule and that there have been fewer of the accompanying cases of torture than before. It is probably also that the custom is retreating to remote rural districts, where common sense and intelligence on the subject are slow in penetrating. Certainly if there is no great reason for satisfaction in the statistics of this year there is in them nothing to cause discouragement.

Foods Eaten With the Fingers.

Never, at any time, bite off mouthfuls of bread from a large piece, nor cut it up; break it as needed in pieces the size of a mouthful, and so transfer with the fingers to the mouth. Crackers are eaten in the same way. Celery, radishes, olives, salted nuts, crystallized fruits, bonbons, all raw fruit (save berries, melons and grape fruit), artichokes and corn on cob are finger foods, so to speak. Cake is eaten after the manner in which bread is disposed of, or with a fork.

Peaches are quartered the quarters peeled, then cut in mouthfuls and these bits transferred with the fingers to the lips. Apples, pears and nectarines are similarly treated. Plums, grapes, etc., if small enough, are eaten, one by one, and when the pits are ejected they are dropped from the lips directly into the half closed hand and so transferred to the plate.

Burnt artichokes are broken apart leaf by leaf, the tips dipped in sauce and lifted to the mouth. The heart is cut and eaten with a fork.

Cheese is cut in bites, placed on morsels of bread or biscuit, and lifted in the fingers to the lips.

Oranges, like green corn on the cob are hardly susceptible of graceful treatment. An orange may be cut into four pieces; the skin then easily drawn off, the seeds pressed out and each quarter served twice, forms a suitable mouthful. Deliberately to peel and devour an orange slice by slice is an ungraceful performance.

Chicken, game and chops should never under any circumstances, be taken up in the fingers. Whosoever is so unskillful as to fail to cut the larger part of the meat from chop and known merchants of Le Raysville, N. BLUE EYES AND BROWN.

Many People Rely on Them to Determine Temperment.

Which are the Truthful and Honest and Which the Crude and Treacherous?

Northerners have an invincible tendency to assign virtue or goodness to the fair complexion, wickedness or falsehood to the dark. If one could rely upon the test of novels it might be argued that this prejudice is weakening—for the villain whether male or female, is sometimes blond nowadays, and the heroine brunette. One might almost venture to say that it was never so formerly. Perhaps there is no sound reason for thinking that the blue-eyed are thankful, honest and loving—in the sense of affection and constancy—rather than the brown.

But the striking reports on the association of complexion and disease in hospitals which Dr. Beddoes suggested long ago, and Dr. Shrubshall, foremost among many now is carrying out, have a certain bearing on the point says the Pall Mall Gazette. They prove that dark hair and eyes are supplanting the light in this country—a fact which all thoughtful persons have observed. But also they demonstrate the reason—which is, shortly, that the blonde are constitutionally unfitted to endure the conditions of town life, and actually perish in the foul atmosphere and the barbarism of the shows. Adults enter the hospitals in proportions far too great and children die. They must have fresh air, wholesome exercise and decent surroundings to keep in health. But these are the conditions of rustic life, which, as universal experience in all ages, preserves, if it does not generate, such virtues as simplicity, truthfulness and honesty, which town life, favored by the dark, corrupts.

Upon the other hand, the brown-eyed people assert that the fair are treacherous and cruel. This is a common belief in Italy, where it might be traced to a popular reminiscence of the blonde northerners who ravaged that hapless country from generation to generation. But it is much older. Plutarch cites a contemporary epigram passed upon Cato the Censor, who was red-haired and gray-eyed, which shows that it was current even then. And it is an article of faith all through the east.

Sir Edward Malet tells in his biography how he once called at Alexandria, and the population assembled, believing him to be the new governor of Cyprus. To his dragoman he expressed a hope that they were favorably impressed by his appearance, at any rate, but the dragoman honestly replied that it was not so—blue-eyed governor they thought must be harsh and cruel. And he added that the feeling is general all through the Levant. But the famous code of Menu—an orthodox Hindoo is flatly forbidden to marry a woman with gray eyes or red hair—perhaps for this reason, though none is assigned. In all cases it may be that tradition of ruthless invaders from the north has caused the prejudice, since many Afghans, and many Persians of the wild tribes, are fair—not to mention the British in modern times. But that is an assumption.

We are using the term blue-eyed in a conventional sense. As a matter of fact, that color is the rarest by far of all. Some assert, indeed, that it does not exist, and many doubtless have never seen it. Perhaps the rarity of blue is not to be regretted, unless by enthusiasts who set beauty above charity and humanity. For all animals which have blue eyes are more or less "hard of hearing." This is generally known in the case of cats, and it is equally true of horses and wild creatures. It is an instance of co-relation, as Darwin termed the mysterious law and one would expect to find it apply to human beings, as is alleged. Also we must admit that blue or green or gray eyes have a narrower range of expression than dark. Perhaps, indeed the fair do not respond so quickly to the impulse of the moment; of more sedate or color temperament, they can not meet a word or a thought half-way and flesh back the answer instantly. At any rate, brown eyes, which we call black, have an advantage in power of expression.

It used to be taken for granted that savages possess a wider range of eyesight and keener observation than civilized men. Common sense favored the belief and a report published by the surgeon of the Western ophthalmic hospital some years ago gave an alarming picture of the State of things among school children. But persons who speak with authority have contradicted the popular notion of late—especially Messrs. Spencer and Gillen, in their great work on the Engelman. Of course, these witnesses may have unusual powers of vision, but their remarks show at least that the European may be equal in this respect.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulae, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formulae on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-eat, which, if neglected or badly treated, lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you; not only give it a thorough and fair trial, but extend its use. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unequalled endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.

85-POUND CAT FISH IN SAWLOG.

Narrowly Escaped Being Cut In-to Two by Four's at an Evansville Sawmill.

It was a cruel fate that a fat eighty-five pound "valley" cat fish narrowly missed at Helfrich's sawmill at Evansville last week. Had not Steve Brown, a sawyer, heard heard sounds like the flopping of a fish tail as a hollow fourteen foot elm log approached the buzzing circular saw, the big fish would have been cut into fish steaks of the usual two by four and two by six dimensions. Steve let his eyes aid his ears and peering into the muddy hole at the hollow end of the log, saw the scandal appendage of a fish of unknown length and weight.

After a little work with the ax the fish was pulled out by three men. When measured the length of the fish was found to be five feet and eight inches from the tip of tail to the huge mouth.

The log from which the fish was taken also contained several hundred billions of fish eggs, a dishpan of them being collected. The log was forty inches in diameter and was brought from Green river Tuesday in a large raft. From all evidence the fish had been in the log for months. The forward fins of the fish had become fastened over the rough surface of the hollow log and apparently when Mr. Fish, (or rather Mrs. Fish) attempted to take a backward slide out of the log it could not be disengaged.

When dressed the fish measured over four feet in length.

Telegraphers Wanted.

Twenty-three railroads have asked the Bowling Green Business University for telegraphy students trained in that institution. Though it is the largest telegraphy school South of the Ohio river, it is unable to supply the demands made upon it for operators. The same is true of bookkeepers and stenographers. Young people never had a better opportunity to secure certain and remunerative positions.

NIGHT RIDERS NOT TOUCHED.

Christian County Grand Jury
Fails to Indict Scrappers.

Detective Pedigo Asked to be Excused From Making Disclosures Till Next Grand Jury.

A Hopkinsville special says: The grand jury adjourned Tuesday at noon without returning any indictments against night riders. The matter investigated did not come to a vote, though it is believed an indictment could have been returned by a close vote. As a whole the body was a representative one composed of good men. The foreman, J. T. Walker, was fearless conscientious and earnestly in favor of carrying out the court's instructions and publishing the raiders. Nine of the jurors belonged to the association but it is said to the credit of the association some of its members were the strongest in favor of going to the bottom of the lawlessness. Evidence enough was secured to find an indictment in more than one case, but in seeking for corroborative evidence, Detective Tom B. Pedigo was brought before the jury the last day. He frankly told them that he had evidence, but was not ready to disclose it, as it would interfere with the complete exposure he expected to be able to make by the time another grand jury meets. A premature exposure of the line he was working on would endanger the success of his investigations. After hearing him, the grand jury decided to file all the evidence secure as the basis of further investigation and let the matter go over for ninety days, when the September grand jury will meet.

The failure to indict men whose criminality was shown by strong circumstantial evidence, is liable to embolden the night riders to commit further outrages. In fact there are already indications of new methods of destroying property.

Mr. R. L. Horn, of Lafayette, whose plants were destroyed in the beds, was in town Tuesday and told a Kentuckian representative that he had been told that the threshers would not be allowed to thresh his wheat crop. He placed his farm in the hands of a real estate company and is preparing to sell out and move.

It is now known to be fact that a citizen of the Roaring Spring neighborhood was recently taken out of this home by a mob of fifteen or twenty men and whipped for "talking too much," and ordered him to leave the country, which he promptly did. Those in a position to know say that some of the night riders are permitting their identity to become known, so confident are they that the courts are powerless to push them.

Kills Bear With Penknife.

Jay Bunch, of this city, had an experience last week that bids fair to rival Roosevelt's coyote yarn. Bunch is a filer at Larkin Bros.' logging camp on the Wishkah, and one day last week with a friend and several dogs started out to find a bear tree.

They had not gone far when the dogs started up a bear. Bruin took refuge in the top of a tree, but was finally dislodged, and one of the dogs managed to get a good hold on the animal's ear and hung there. Bunch had no other weapon than a jack-knife, but he got it in working order and commenced the hand-to-hand battle. He struck the bear about 40 times, finally severing his jugular vein, and bruise, weak from the loss of blood, gave up the fight. The bear's hide is literally punctured with holes around the throat. The animal weighed about 300 pounds.—Seattle Times.

How to Make Toffee.

Toffie is an almost unknown sweet over here, but the small English children thrive on it and usually known how to make it. It's a quite different thing from butterscotch, which is jolly good but not as jolly good as toffie. Here's a recipe for it: Take three pounds of "coffee," or "C" sugar, butter to the amount of a pound and a quarter, with half a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. First dissolve the sugar in just as much cold water as may be required for that purpose, then mix all the ingredients together and boil them without stirring the mixture until it will snap when dropped into cold water. At this moment remove it from the fire, add eight or ten drops of lemon extract according to its strength, and pour the mixture into well greased pans, to be cut into squares as it cools.

120 HOGS AND SHEEP FOR BARBECUE.

Planters of Kentucky, Tennessee
And Virginia Expect 50,000
Guests at Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Planters' Protective Association of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia which will meet at Guthrie, Ky., September 26, is creating much interest. The management of the association has issued a letter to its members asking them for the usual contributions in the shape of money, hogs and sheep. It is said that preparations will be made to entertain fifty-thousand people. Besides the baskets of candies that will be carried by the members living near by, six hundred hogs and an equal number of sheep will be slaughtered for the occasion. Fifteen barrels of pickles and fifty thousand trays will also be furnished.

Speakers of note will be present from many States and some twenty brass bands will participate in the parade, which is expected to be the longest ever held in the State. The Louisville board of trade will be invited to attend in a body. The meeting would not have again been held at Guthrie this year as a number of much larger cities wanted it, and it not been for its railroad facilities, as it was also the most central point. The planters of the three States are looking forward to having a big time.

The Passing of Congressional Singing.

Until within a few years congregational singing was one of the conspicuous features of every community in this country. From Maine to California at least twice on Sunday, and usually at evening service in the middle of the week, practically the entire population assembled in the churches chiefly to sing. Those who could, those who thought they could were no more fond of lifting up their voices than were those who could not sing and knew it, but were grateful for the opportunity to indulge their passion unnoted and unrehearsed in the security of the chorus.

All this is passing away, not the love of doing a little singing, but the opportunity for doing it. The knowing ones and those who wish to be thought knowing have frowned it down. The congregation must listen; not participate; the man or woman who can not sing a little bit yet yearns for the relief or stimulus of singing, must take to the woods or pity. Singing directly develops those qualities that lift the thoughts and the hearts from the ground and lighten the burdens of life. The preacher who would pack his church will insist upon congregational singing and encourage everybody to join in heartily. He would lose only the finicky, and the finicky would not be happy even in heaven. —Our country.

No better State ticket has ever been submitted to the voters of Kentucky by any party, than the one which adorns the top of this column.

Be sure to read the Republican State platform published in this issue, and remember that the Democratic State ticket is without any platform whatever.

In some quarters Democracy seems to fear that their tariff thunder will be appropriated by the Republicans next year in their platform. Nothing could be better for them should such a thing happen. Their candidate for President would be elected beyond a doubt.

The Hartford Herald is very much disturbed because there were so few negroes in the recent Republican conventions held here. Well, if there had been a great many present, that fact would have disturbed it just as much. So what's the use. You can't please a chronic grumbler.

The Republican State platform demands a county unit local option law for the entire State. The Democratic party, nor any of its candidates have gone so far. Their party and its candidates for Governor stands committed to the present county unit law which exempts citizens of the first, second, third and fourth classes.

In the course of his speech before the recent Republican Convention ex-Governor Bradley said: "Boys we have got them. They are on the run. If you are true to yourselves, your party and your country, there can be no doubt of the result. These are words of the wisest counsel and Republicans will win this year if they act as therein directed.

The Louisville Evening Post says, "the Republican party in Kentucky is without leaders." We have had a number of valuable accessaries from the Democrats in the last few years, who gave promise in that line, but the Post Editor always insists on shelving them in some Federal office, thus leaving the old line fellows to take all the responsibility of leading the boys in the trenches.

The Hartford Republican has the largest circulation of any paper in Ohio county, and is therefore the best advertising medium in which to reach the people in Ohio county. It does not pay any postage on its circulation within the county, and neither does any other paper published within the county. The Herald's statement that it pays more postage than this paper was made for the purpose of misleading.

The Evening Post says the Republicans have no State platform, and yet it contains the very things for which its "man of the hour," Mr. Marshall Bullitt contended in his speech before the convention. The plain truth is the Post is a greater enemy to the Republican party than the Courier-Journal or Times. Republicans should cease giving it their support. It has been fed and clothed by Republicans too long already.

On the sixth page of this issue we publish a humorous "jag" embracing a request that everybody help us get the news. We took it from an exchange and so state. After it was put in type but before the Republican was printed the Hartford Herald looms up with the article on its first page as an original production. The Herald is getting quite as bad about such things as other country weeklies within the scope of our observation.

The editor of the Evening Post having failed to run and ruin the Republican State Convention, when last heard from, was in consultation with Gov. Beckham offering free advice and importuning him to recognize the Knott, Kohn, Whallen combine in the appointment of city officers for Louisville. If Kentucky Republicans ever again allow this man to dictate to them, there will be swarms of life-long Republicans who will ask to be transferred to some other ship. If the Taft managers are wise, they will select some other organ in the State.

Dick Knott with his half century of experience, special endowment and wonderful tact at prevarication cannot approach the pace set by the Hartford Herald in dealing with the Republican State Convention and the platform enunciated by it. Its column and half devoted to the subject is one continuous misrepresentation embracing not a single true honest statement. The platform, which has been pronounced good by the Courier-Journal and which will go down in history as a magnificent ~~State~~ paper contained not a sentence, paragraph or word that sounded good to the critical ear of the Herald editors.

The Herald this week seeks to perpetrate its old story on the public to the effect that the present Republican county administration has increased expenses, by raising salaries of officers. This was exposed by us months ago. We do not know the Herald's purpose in reopening it except it is under the idea that you can make an untruth go through repetition. The County Clerk's records will show that the late Democratic County Attorney, was paid an average about $900 per year. The late Democratic County Judge was paid a salary of $650 and $100 for acting as Auditor. Besides an average about $100 per year for acting as special commissioner for various purposes. The present County Judge and County Attorney receive $750 per year, and nothing for extra services. Instead of being an increase in expenses to the County, this is a saving of about $200 per year. All well informed people know that the new office, created under Democratic law, Road and Bridge Commissioner for the entire county, takes the place of seven Road and Bridge Commissioners, and while he is paid a salary of $800, this is about $200 less than was paid out yearly under the old system of 10 per cent. on the amount expended, which is usually about $10,000. This old yarn was dragged out, revamped and tired off by the Herald to justify the present State Administration in taking from our soldier boys half of their meager 43 cents per day, while in encampment, to provide a fund with which to pay their expenses to Jamestown. The great State of Kentucky is disgraced by such a peaty proceeding, and the Herald editors know it. It cannot be escaped by misrepresenting the Republican administration in Ohio county.

NO PLATFORM AT ALL.

We have repeatedly called attention to the fact that in the State campaign in Kentucky this year our Democratic friends were merely running for the offices, having enunciating no platform of principles. To our mind this seemed to their disadvantage, as there is a large and constantly growing class of voters, even in Kentucky, who want to know what they are voting for, as well as whom. However, the Courier-Journal, the Democratic mouth piece, takes a different and somewhat peculiar view of it. Here is what it says:

"The Democrats have an advantage in having no platform at all. This gives latitude for debate. On the liquor question, indeed, the Republicans might be accused of planting themselves on the old Democratic doctrine of opposition to sumptuary laws."

Yes, wide "latitude for debate." People all over Kentucky are now debating among themselves what position the Democratic party would take upon many questions on which the Republican party stands committed in its platform. There is the question of non-partisan courts, for instance.

The repeal of the registration certificate for fifth and sixth class towns and the reduction of taxes. These are only a few of the vital questions which the people will want to know about. Unless the Democratic candidates hold a meeting and write a platform, how are the voters to determine "where they are at."

The Evening Post says the Republicans have no State platform, and yet it contains the very things for which its "man of the hour," Mr. Marshall Bullitt contended in his speech before the convention. The plain truth is the Post is a greater enemy to the Republican party than the Courier-Journal or Times. Republicans should cease giving it their support. It has been fed and clothed

The evil of boys throwing at random on the streets was brought prominently to the attention of the citizens and especially to Capt. S. C. It will cost $50 to replace the broken glass.

Mr. W. B. Hinton, Sunnydale, called to see us while in town yesterday. Mr. Hinton is deaf and dumb, but is a man of more than average intelligence and education, being able to read and write rapidly. He is a subscriber of our paper, and an uncompromising Republican. Mr. Hinton is a great admirer of McKinley and Roosevelt. Pointing to their pictures on the wall in our office and to his pocket, he indicated that it was their administrations which made the full pocket book. Mr. Hinton took great interest in the machinery in our plant, especially did he marvel at the type setting machine.

A Prominent citizen has suggested that, since Hartford is firm in the grasp of the stock law, it would be well for the Onio County Fiscal Court to remove the old, rust covered, iron fence from around the Court House. We believe he is right. The grounds would show to much better advantage, and the fence is now of no earthly use. Let the court think about this suggestion.

Messrs. E. L. Bullington and John W. Taylor, Hartford's efficient tonsorial artists, have formed a partnership under the firm name of Bullington & Taylor, and will open a commodious barber shop and bath rooms in the corner rooms of the old Hartford House, corner Market and Union streets. Mrs. Emma Black, wife of the late J. W. Black, died quite unexpectedly Tuesday night at the Hopkinsville Asylum where she had been almost continuously for the past four years. She was in splendid physical condition and it is reported that she fell dead evidently from heart failure. Her remains were brought back home for burial. Rev. G. J. Bean conducted the funeral services at Bethel cemetery at 10 o'clock, after which interment took place at Bethel cemetery.

Last Tuesday while out driving about one mile north of town Misses Mary and Nora Wedding met with quite a serious accident. The horse, which was considered safe, became frightened and ran away, tearing the buggy to pieces. Miss Mary jumped and sustained a fracture of the arm near the shoulder. Miss Nora was thrown out, but not seriously hurt. Miss Mary was assisted to the home of Mr. S. E. Bennett, near by, where her injured arm was dressed by her uncle, Dr. S. J. Wedding, when she was removed to her home in town. She is getting along well, and will soon be out again.

The Methodist Sunday School excursion and picnic last Saturday was beset with many hindrances. About five miles below town the propelling chain on the "We Three" broke, and was lost in about 20 foot water. The party was cooped up on the boat all day, while the boat management exhausted every means to recover the lost chain. On board the barge the party was towed back to town late in the evening by the two yachts belonging to Capt. A. D. White and Messrs. E. W. Cooper and R. C. Porter, to whom they are under many obligations. On the way back a terrific rain and wind storm was encountered and many of the party were drenched and not a few badly frightened. However, the best of humor and good feeling prevailed and all had a good time. The feature of the trip was the bountiful lunch served on the boat by the ladies. Everything good to eat was there in great abundance, and it never tasted better was the unanimous verdict. About 75 pupils of the school and visitors made the trip.

Mr. W. B. Hinton, Sunnydale, called to see us while in town yesterday. Mr. Hinton is deaf and dumb, but is a man of more than average intelligence and education, being able to read and write rapidly. THE LATTER DAY OR NEW INDIAN.

Not a Creature of the Days of Fenimore Cooper but a Modern Gentleman.

A new series of Indian portraits is needed. The "noble red man" of Fenimore Cooper and Catlin, the fierce figure in war paint and feathers, lost his romantic interest when he was confined to a reservation and fed on rations. Now the stolid reservation dweller has been supplanted in true by the new man, Indian only in blood and traditions, who is stepping up to take his place as to represent the new Indians, says Everybody's Magazine, will include a shorthaired, dark-faced man, dressed in black slouch hat, dingy white cotton shirt blue overalls and hob-nailed shoes. He may be a Kiowa farmer, who gathered 600 bushels of corn from twenty acres of cultivated land last year, or one of the 391 Pine Ridge Indians, who put up 6700 tons of hay to carry their stock through the winter. Or he may be Plenty Buffalo, who has worked with team and scraper on the Huntley irrigation project in Montana for six months or Bert Fredericks, the Hopi night foreman on the tunnel at the Zuni dam in Arizona.

The pictures will also depict the Indian woman as mistress of a prairie cabin, feeding the chickens or carrying food to her calves and pigs who were found alive indeed, as she sat up and tried to speak. But to their horror, she did not long survive. Every effort was made to help her, but she gave a last gasp, coughed up some blood and sank back in the doctor's arms. This time she was really dead.

Buried Alive.

A terrible story of a young woman who was buried alive is reported from Paris. She was supposed to have died a few days ago, and a burial permit having been given as usual, she was interred on the following day. The grave diggers, however, left the grave only partially filled, thinking there was no hurry, and three days later an inhabitant of the village, passing by the cemetery, stopped to look at the grave. He was surprised to hear loud knocking, apparently inside the coffin, buried under only a very light layer of ground. He could not at first believe his senses and got down to put his ear to the ground.

Not only did the knocking continue but he also heard the young woman calling out and moaning. He hurried for assistance and a doctor, and when the coffin was opened the young woman was found alive indeed, as she sat up and tried to speak. But to their horror, she did not long survive. Every effort was made to help her, but she gave a last gasp, coughed up some blood and sank back in the doctor's arms. This time she was really dead.

Chicken That can Talk.

After ten years of experimenting Clinton H. Willis, a rancher on the Monterey road, has produced a chicken that can talk. The foul is the sixth generation of across between a parrot and a guinea hen, and in its every characteristic except the lower half of its bill and the arrangement of its toes the bird is a chicken. The upper half of the bill is straight like that of the guinea hen, while the lower part is clearly a parrot beak. Its toes are arranged two and two, instead of three and one, as in the barnyard fowl. At present, the chicken's vocabulary is limited to "Morning, Clint; chaw terbacker, Clint," and a swear word.—San Jose (Cal.) dispatch in the New York World.

Definition of a Box Car.

The following definition of a box car does not appear in Webster's, but there are plenty of railroad men and shippers who will heartily agree with the one who framed it up: "A box car belongs to the fowl family. During the spring and summer months it can be found in nearly every part of the country, its favorite haunts being railway tracks, and it is easy of capture. In the autumn, however, like certain other fowls, it goes into hibernation or flies to other climes. Scattered instances are known where specimens are captured during the autumn months. A lasso or a well-greased switch crew is sometimes used in snaring the festive box car, but main strength is the best weapon. In any case the hunter must be very wary, as any noise like the fluttering of a waybill will make the quarry disappear. Some railways own large flocks of domesticated box cars, but they are carefully guarded during the closed season. The wild box car, when captured and fairly well loaded becomes gentle and perfectly stationary."

Golden Rule in Modern Business

We have on several occasions called the attention to the progress made along the lines of justice and enlightenment by various co-operative works in the republic. Among these has been the co-operative Association of America, whose master spirit since its organization has been Mr. Bradford Peck. Mr. Peck built up the greatest department store in Maine, situated at Lewiston, and after the organization of the Co-operative Association of America this store became a part of the activities operated by the association. The aim has been to make the store more and more an exemplification of the broad spirit of fraternity, based on justice, and to this end innovations have steadily been introduced. One of these is the giving to all employees of two weeks' vacation in the summer and two weeks in the winter, or four weeks every year, with pay. Another important innovation which has voiced the co-operative spirit in a very practical manner, has been the giving to each employee of a dividend representing a certain percentage of his salary. Thus, on the 15th of March, of this year, every employee in the great department store received a check amounting to 10 per cent. of his salary. These employees are not stockholders in the work and have not made any financial outlay; but the management recognizes the services they are rendering, and their equitable right to share in the profits of the enterprise.—The Aeran.

Squirrel Whips a Snake.

The story of a battle between a squirrel and a large blacksnake is reported by John Withers, a prominent farmer, who lives north of Carrollton. Mr. Withers has some pet squirrels on his farm, and a few days ago when he went to feed them he noticed a commotion going on in the squirrels' nest. In a few moments a hard squirrel emerged from the hole in the tree dragging a blacksnake.

Both were fighting desperately. The snake was at a disadvantage, however, for the squirrel had a fine strange hold behind the snake's head and shook his unwieldy antagonist much as a dog would a rat. The snake endeavored to encircle the little squirrel with its coil, but could not do so, and presently both the snake and squirrel fell to the ground, the squirrel still retaining his hold on the snake.

Mr. Withers stepped up and the squirrel released his hold and scampered back up the tree. The snake, which measured nearly six feet in length, was nearly dead and was dispatched by Mr. Withers.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

COMMISSIONER AFTER PENSION ATTORNEYS

Veterans of the Mexican War Believed to Have Been Swindled.

The following clipping from the Courier-Journal, will be of interest to survivors of the Mexican War or their heirs. Oftentimes we see offers from attorneys in different parts of the country, to buy up old claims of Mexican War veterans. Don't sell. Have your claim made up by any home attorney or notary public and send it in yourself.

Washington, June 15.—Hundreds of veterans of the Mexican War, or their heirs, resident in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and other States are believed to have been swindled by pension attorneys in this city under the pension laws which allow bounty public land grants of 160 acres.

The attorneys in question have been directed by Commissioner Warner to show why they should not be disbarred from practice before the department, and the Commissioner expressed the opinion to-day that those who have been swindled, could undoubtedly recover through suits. In a number of instances attorneys have expressed a willingness to refund to claimants the full amounts which they should have received.

The allegations are that the pension practice of locking up instances where the warrant had not been issued having not been located, writing to the veteran or his heir and securing power of attorney to execute the claim. The warrant obtained, the attorney would attempt to purchase it for any price the owner would accept. It is charged that in several cases warrants have been purchased for about one dollar an acre and sold by the attorney for as much as seven dollars an acre.

As soon as Commissioner Warner learned that this systematic campaign was being made against the slender resources of the people entitled to this small gift he issued an order that hereafter the warrants for the 160 acre grants shall be issued by registered letter, and only to the persons entitled to the grants. In this way the attorneys are cut out from receiving the first class.

A Real Wonderland.

South Dakota, with its rich silver mines, bonanza farms, wide ranges and strange natural formations, is a veritable wonderland. At Mound City, in the home of Mrs. E. D. Clapp, a wonderful case of healing has lately occurred. Her son seemed near death with lung and throat trouble. "Exhausting coughing spells occurred every five minutes," writes Mrs. Clapp, "when I began giving Dr. King's New Discovery, the great medicine, that saved his life and completely cured him." This Dog Chews Gum.

A friend of ours has a terrier which in my estimation possesses much more intelligence than the average dog intelligence. She is a gun chow and also has a deadly antipathy for a lighted cigar. The first time I called at the home Beauty was unapproachable for some time and then suddenly became friendly, even putting her paws on my knee, licking her chops, and furiously wagging her stump. I expressed surprise at her "making up" so suddenly with me, when one of the members of the household informed me she wanted my gum. Beauty barked joyously on my making a movement to give it to her, and on receiving it immediately started chewing. The funny part of it was that she did not swallow it, but half an hour later was lying in the corner still busily chewing.—Chicago Tribune.

The Watch and the Whistle.

The worker on the farm, or in the shop, or anywhere else, who carries a watch, which he frequently refers to as though he feared he might over-work a minute or two, is always suspected by his employer. The employer may be never so liberal, and may not wish his employees to work a minute overtime, yet when he sees them often inquiring of their time-piece as though they had an important engagement at a certain minute, the impression made is not a good one.

Now, a hired man has a right to carry a watch the same as has his employer, but the hand who watches his watch is sure to be watched himself.

And the hand that has his ear turned constantly so as to catch the first sound of the noon or night whistle does not make a favorable impression upon his employer. He stands in the attitude of fear that he may do a little too much work—a little more than the contract calls for, and the employer feels toward him just as he would feel toward him just as he would feel toward the employer if that individual manifested an

PRIZE POTATOES.

Excellent Quality of Tubers Grown Under Straw.

The accompanying illustration is from a photograph made at the 1906 Illinois state fair, and the potatoes shown are prize winning samples from my collection of forty-five varieties grown that were shown at the state fair last fall. I was awarded first prize for best and largest collection and also took fifteen first prizes on single exhibits out of a list of seventeen.

Cotton is king of a vast domain throughout the south, but here and there his sway has been disputed and the scepter has passed away from his palsied hand in certain outlying provinces. One of these provinces is the Texas coast country, extending from Galveston to Brownsville, from which immense daily shipments of berries, onions, cabbage and other truck are now being shipped in carloads and trainloads. Having been closely identified with the beginnings of these shipments, having watched and assisted them for some years, we feel proud of the success these pioneers have achieved in establishing a new and profitable industry.

The Crop.

The winter cabbage crop is worth from $40 to $200 per acre, depending on fertility of land and the skill of the grower. Yields of 15,000 pounds are common. This, at a net price of 1 cent per pound, or $1 per 100 pounds, represents $150 per acre. Higher yields have reached 30,000 pounds. When the plants have been carefully grown in the cold frames and transplanted to the rich fields in early fall, the yields often exceed 15,000 pounds to the acre. When seed are drilled in the fields where plants are to stand until maturity, a larger acre can be tended per man, but the yield usually falls short of those above indicated. This is not always the case. We have seen some rich and especially well prepared land on which the seed were drilled turn off 20,000 pounds per acre.

In Much Demand.

There is a demand for this winter cabbage from all parts of the country. We quote from a recent issue of the Corpus Christi Caller to show the movement of the cabbage crop during one week of March at that point alone, under the heading "Cabbage Is King."

"The vegetable shipping business is opening up in earnest again at Corpus Christi, the produce rolling out now by the carload as well as by express daily, the total carloads shipped so far this season being fifty cars straight cabbage and five cars mixed, making seventy-two cars cabbage and twenty cars mixed vegetables to date of average weight of produce in car of 22,000 pounds, and the cry is 'And still they come.' Nine straight carloads rolled out of Corpus Christi Wednesday."—Texas Farm and Ranch.

A FEW PRIZE WINNERS.

Banner, Burpee's Eureka, Early Ohio, World's Fair and Snowflake. Last year was an exceptionally good year for potatoes grown under straw. The tubers are smoother and more uniformly large and of better quality than I have seen for years. I think the farmers of St. Clair county grow more potatoes under straw than any other county in the state and perhaps in the United States. Thousands of bushels of these potatoes are shipped from Belleville to other points in the country and to the St. Louis market. Hundreds of bushels are also peddled out to private customers. The keeping and eating qualities of my potatoes grown under straw are excellent.—S. M. Ripley in New England Homestead.

Kaffir Corn in Kansas.

Both the saccharine and the nonsaccharine varieties of sorghum endure drought better than corn and are also less susceptible to the injurious influences of hot winds. It is believed that Kaffir corn and certain other nonsaccharine forms possess greater powers of drought and heat resistance than the saccharine varieties. The statement has been not infrequently made, however, especially in Kansas and other portions of the semiarid plains region, that the saccharine sorghums have proved themselves fully as valuable in this respect as any of the nonsaccharine varieties. It is undoubtedly true that the area devoted to saccharine sorghums in the state of Kansas is increasing less rapidly than is the area devoted to Kaffir corn. This may, however, be explained by the fact that Kaffir corn is grown on a large scale in that state as a grain crop in place of corn, as well as for forage purposes.

Carleton R. Ball.

Yellow Transparent Apples.

This transparent apple tree is eight years old. It is a part of the Montana experiment station's young orchard.

The foliage is thrifty, and the tree is in quiet and content.

On the streets of one of our large western cities, a few days ago, the writer met an old farmer. He looked quite like a fish out of water, and the conversation that followed showed that his appearance did not belie his situation. He said that after making a great success on the farm he had removed with his children to the city; that at first, while he had the education of his sons and daughters to look after, he had been reasonably content, but after a few years, when the young people had finished their schooling, gone into business for themselves and married, he began to find city life intolerable.

"I hate the noise, the dirt, the smoke and the perpetual excitement, hurry and worry," he exclaimed. "I long for the country. I am going out to the farm again. I shall surround myself with the things I like—horses, cattle, hogs, chickens, etc.—and spend my old age under the clean sky in quiet and content. My wife held out for a long time, desiring to be near the children, but last week she decided for the farm, and, thank God, we are going back!"

The experience of this good friend was typical. No life is sounder, sweeter or better than that of the farm. He who has known its joys may be happy amid other surroundings if provided with congenial occupation, but when he has nothing to do the changed situation becomes unbearable. The city has its attractions and advantages, but for real living and rational enjoyment of God's good gifts to man give us the farm every time. It is the best place to live, the best place to grow old and the best place to die.—Iowa Home-steader.

Farms In Virginia.

It also remains true that the ratio of farms selling to farms for sale is exceedingly small and that in many parts of Virginia five times as much land can be bought for $5 an acre as can be sold at $25 an acre. But even if every farm in the state could be sold for two or three times as much as it was assessed at a few years ago this would not necessarily bring corresponding benefit to the owners, for most of our farmers, unable in any other calling to support their families, would still find it to their advantage to hold on to their land.—Southern Planter.

The Gain In Liming Land.

The Maryland experiment station notes that in some tests of the value of liming the soil the limed plot gave a better yield in every case than the unlimed one and that the average net return was $4.50 per acre per year.

While this may seem to be small at first, yet when applied to a 100 or a 150 acre farm it would mean from $450 to $600 more for each farm annually.

In the Weeds and Grass.

The coming of the first weeds in the garden inaugurates a constant struggle that must be kept up for weeks and requires the cultivator and the plow to be ever on the move. As the land becomes vacant sow corn or plant sweet potatoes—draws or vines. Keep the strawberries as free from grass and coco or knob grass as possible.

The Range Transformed.

The passing of the range and its extensive herds of cattle has been freely predicted and no doubt will eventually take place. That vast acreages of range country are being transformed into farms is a matter of common knowledge. That the southwestern cattleman is becoming more familiar with the value of his available feeds for fattening cattle is evident, which no doubt will result in more feeding or finishing of cattle in that section of the country. Notwithstanding these facts there is more or less uncertainty surrounding the extent and the nature of the future cattle business on the numerous farms resulting from the subdivision of the extensive ranges.—H. W. Mumford.

THE MULBERRY.

It is Considered Worthy of a More Extended Culture.

The mulberry has several valuable features which, according to a recent bulletin from the North Carolina station, makes it worthy of a more extended culture in the home grounds than is at present given to it.

To begin with, the fruit will grow successfully on nearly any kind of soil, doing best probably on moist sandy loams. The tree is a rapid, vigorous grower, requires practically no culture, makes an ornamental shade tree, and some of the better varieties will yield from ten to twelve bushels of fruit per season. A valuable feature of the fruit is that it ripens almost continuously over a period of two to four months every year. The fruit is greatly relished by hogs and poultry. Birds prefer it to cherries or strawberries, and when planted in the vicinity of these fruits it serves as a protection to them.

For Planting About the Farm.

From the standpoint of fruit production the North Carolina station recommends the following varieties for planting about the farm: New American, Black English, Stubbs and Townsend of the black fruited varieties and White English and White Russian of the white fruited sorts. The Black English is considered as one of the most satisfactory varieties for planting in North Carolina.

White Fruited Varieties.

Of the white fruited varieties recommended by the North Carolina station White English is considered by far the best. It is a heavy bearer, producing sweet, medium sized fruits of good quality from May to July. The White Russian seems to be a small, bushy, very hardy sort and quite productive. The fruit is of medium size, white, very sweet and of fair quality. The season is from May to June.

In addition to the use of mulberries as a fruit, the leaves constitute the chief food of the silkworm.

Mulberries are propagated from seeds or by grafting, budding, layering and cuttings.

Worms In Fowls.

For worms in fowls feed a mash food each morning for a week containing a liberal amount of freshly crushed garlic bulbs, or, if you cannot obtain them, good strong raw onions. Use as much of this in the mash as you can get the birds to eat readily. Disinfect all droppings with a 2 per cent solution of sulphuric acid. Burn up all litter material and thoroughly disinfect your poultry houses. If you leave droppings lying about they will be scratched over by other birds, and these will become affected also.

BACK TO THE FARM.

For Real Living Under the Clean Sky

In Quiet and Content.

On the streets of one of our large western cities, a few days ago, the writer met an old farmer. He looked quite like a fish out of water, and the conversation that followed showed that his appearance did not belie his situation. He said that after making a great success on the farm he had removed with his children to the city; that at first, while he had the education of his sons and daughters to look after, he had been reasonably content, but after a few years, when the young people had finished their schooling, gone into business for themselves and married, he began to find city life intolerable.

"I hate the noise, the dirt, the smoke and the perpetual excitement, hurry and worry," he exclaimed. "I long for the country. I am going out to the farm again. I shall surround myself with the things I like—horses, cattle, hogs, chickens, etc.—and spend my old age under the clean sky in quiet and content. My wife held out for a long time, desiring to be near the children, but last week she decided for the farm, and, thank God, we are going back!"
